PNMC Sister-Care Seminars

Prayer Shawls were given at Sister-Care in WA. Each group decided who at their table would receive the gift prepared by women of Mountain View Mennonite, Kalispell.

PNMC Sister-Care across four states, on three October weekends, in three locations brought together 122 women to learn and grow in understanding ourselves, our call to care for others, listening to one another, and the willingness to share some of our own story. Each seminar had several women telling a personal story of loss and grief. We appreciated the support of pastors who joined other women from their congregations in the seminars.

Sister-Care has not finished or ended with the seminars. Sister-Care is a movement that will begin to engage many more within each congregation. If your congregation was not able to participate in these seminars, but would like more information and someone to visit with you on this, you may contact Pat Hershberger patershberger@msn.com or Kathy Bilderback kabilderback@earthlink.net. Look for more details on Sister-Care in the next issue of Evangel.

Mennonite Publishing Network

Now Available: Prophetic Peacemaking: Selected Writings of J. R. Burkholder edited by Keith Graber Miller. J. R. Burkholder's life and work as ethicist, churchman, and social change agent spanned and influenced dramatic changes in twentieth-century Mennonite peace theology and ecumenical engagements. Prophetic Peacemaking is a collection of Burkholder's most prescient essays on pacifism, patriotism, public witness, Mennonite ethics, healthcare, stewardship, vocation, service, and other issues of authentic discipleship.

For editor Keith Graber Miller, "these essays function not as period pieces, but as reflections on faithful living that are relevant for future generations of peacemakers. In his modeling and teaching, J. R. inspired scores of students and colleagues toward peacemaking vocations, and his voice still resonates for 21st-century followers of the one Christians call the Prince of Peace.
